

In compiling our shortlist for Best Electronica Music and Blogs, we were conscious that the genre title didn't quite convey the full range displayed by the artists below. In reality, a lot of these guys are individually impossible to pigeonhole, so trying to come up with a single descriptor for such a diverse group was akin to herding cats. Nevertheless, each one is worthy of a listen as fresh surprises abound!

Sienna

sienna-web.com

The music of Sienna will gently lull you into that state somewhere between waking and sleeping, when your dreams are still going but you're only half aware that none of it is real. Taking influences not only from her native Japan and her base in Norway but from all over the world, she concocts a musical recipe like none other while maintaining a comforting sense of the familiar. As a result of this, her fan base covers a huge range of people.

Reasons to Check 'Em Out

Her website is well kept with regular updates of tour news and dates, new tracks to listen to and just enough info to keep you interested. Take a look here and be guaranteed that you won't look back. Sienna is not only exciting, she's a musician you want to listen to.
