Sienna releases new single called "I Know Why". Bittersweet and dreamy emotion can be felt through out the song, a great mix of male and female vocals. Electronic calm sound accompanied by modern beats and interesting instrumentation makes this single a unique piece of art. Take a listen to the new single in the player below:

About Sienna:

Sienná are a trio who revel in the colourful and varied blend of life and music that the world has to offer. As people they hail from diverse backgrounds, with roots spreading multi-nationally from Japan to Europe – as musicians they carry on an ethos of amalgamation.

The new single 'I Know Why' is a blend of electronic pop, jazz and 'Gagaku' - a type of traditional music from Kyoto, Japan - ancient imperial court music written to accompany dance. It is also the first track produced by frontlady Sienná herself, and will be released via her own label Anneis Records.

Joining Sienná (keyboard, vocal, sound-module) and Hallvard (bass) to complete the trio is Vegard Lien Bjerkan (keyboard). In 2014, the band has performed at Brighton's prestigious The Great Escape Festival, and have since performed at the major Scandinavian festival Sommerøya Elektronika Festival, as well as Berlin's newest Jazz Boulevard Steglitz Festival. They are back in the UK this October for a set of exclusive UK dates in promotion of the single, including support spots for the legendary The Crazy World of Arthur Brown. Of the tour.
