

Kyoto born artist/songwriter who is based in Oslo, Sienná has been increasing the range of a cult following by making a name for herself internationally in the underground electronica scene with her brilliantly bizarre creativity.

Her 10th original release, and 6th full album 'Wa-Kei-Sei-Jyaku 和敬清寂' is set for release on May 16. The artist channels her love of 'east-meets-west' concept and experimental soundscape into an 9-track LP that captures even more of her "no-rules" approach to songwriting and her dreamy and crossover cinematic-electronic music.

Following on from the album, Sienná also drops the synth-avantgarde new single 'Pay It Forward' – a track that basically was born as a result of playful improvisation and scrabble words that ended up with making good sense in the current world we are living in. Accompanying the song is the stylish music video, which will be viewable on Youtube on the release date.

"I visualized what came up in my mind in silence during the pandemic, and now I'm happy to let them fly out of the nest." she also says "I dedicate my release to Ryuichi Sakamoto whose music has been an essential part of my life."

'Wa-Kei-Sei-Jyaku 和敬清寂' will be digitally available for streaming and purchase in major online stores.
